

Mark Shorrock, CEO, Low Carbon Accelerator, UK

Mark Shorrock is the founder of Low Carbon Initiative, the investment manager of Low Carbon Accelerator. Since 2003, Mark has worked with a group of advisers to identify business solutions to climate change seeking out fast growing businesses capable of reducing CO2 emissions immediately and uncovered numerous strong management teams and solid business models which, in many cases, were synergistic with other potentially fast growing businesses. It was this preparatory work which led to the formation of Low Carbon Initiative and Low Carbon Accelerator.

Mark was formerly founder and CEO of Wind Energy Ltd, the UK's largest independent developer of wind farms with over 650MW of onshore wind power in planning in Scotland which has recently sold a majority stake to the US multinational AES, creating a substantial return on investment for its founder shareholders.

Mark's early career was in the film industry where he produced a number of films and set up a number of drama and film productions.
